

Farewell... by Dr. Fik Isaac

As many of you might be aware, after a distinguished career of 26 years serving Johnson & Johnson as the Vice President, Global Health Services and Chief Medical Officer, Health & Wellness Solutions Inc., it was time to move on and I retired effective June, 2016!

It has been an amazing journey for me serving a wonderful and caring organization and being part of this effort to connect with our working force across the globe but also to be connected with all of you who have served and now part of the bigger Johnson & Johnson retirees' family.

I left with great pride and gratitude for as our health and wellness programs and services became the benchmark for how companies and corporation should be managing the health and wellbeing of their population and how to invest in their care through the spectrum of health.

As a key objective of our global health & benefits is to ensure connectivity with all of you, I am extremely excited to introduce you to Dr. Marcelo Targino, our new Chief Health Office and the corporate medical director, who agreed to take on the health & wellness corner, and to share relevant health and wellness topics moving forward.

Dr. Marcelo Targino

Dr. Targino is responsible for the Corporate Medical Team and the Executive Health program providing medical care and support for all executives and senior leaders across the enterprise. He is also responsible for staying ahead of the rapid changes in medicine and technology with the goal of maintaining the healthiest workforce, and positioning Johnson & Johnson as the global thought leader in health and wellbeing. Additionally, Marcelo will provide support to Johnson & Johnson Health and Wellness Solutions, Inc.

He was responsible for the deployment and performance of GHS strategy, policies, standards and compliance across the Americas in the areas of occupational health and workplace health risk management. He also provided clinical services at a number of J&J locations in New Jersey.

Marcelo also works as a Hospital Medicine Specialist, with a focus on critical care medicine at Doylestown Hospital, in Pennsylvania. At this time, I want to say good bye, but I also want you all to know that I am equally excited to join you as a Johnson & Johnson retiree!
